

Dear Students

I am writing this letter to acknowledge the dedication, devotion and participation of labourers who work whole year for the welfare of the country. Today is Labour Day. May 1is celebrated as Labour Day to commemorate the hard work of labours towards the organisation irrespective of their power and position, roles and responsibilities. Labour Day is an honour to the social and economic achievements of the workers. It is also called May Day.

But unfortunately, labourers are not able to earn respect in Indian society. Poverty makes them work at any cost and they settle for less just to keep their houses running.

But children, ever have you thought that our every step in life somehow depends on one or another profession! In morning what groceries we bring from the market, what roads we use to go home or office, what food we eat, and in which house we sleep after the end of a day, all are results of someone's labour. Farmers give us food, sweepers clean our streets and make it walkable and house maid helps make our chores easy.

Labourers should be well treated. Instead of criticizing the government for not fulfilling its constitutional obligations, or industrialists for exploiting laborers, or land-lords for keeping the poor their slaves for generations, let us make one resolution on this Labour Day that we will give self-respect to the labour class of our society. We can make a huge positive change in the lives of the labourers by giving them the respect they deserve. This will definitely give them hope and reaffirm their faith in hard work.

Giving respect to all types of workers is not the greatness of your character, it's your responsibility. If you think you have money or position so you can find an alternative quickly, don't forget the ocean is nothing except a collection of drops.

Child labour is also another evil of our society that needs to be eradicated immediately. Proper education must be given to these poor souls. We should also join hands as individuals to overcome this issue. I hope to see a better society.

Let us rise together to raise the level of respect of the labourers associated with us or working around us.

Children you can share your thoughts about the hardships that labour is facing and suggest some ideas to motivate others to improve their condition by writing poems, stories, slogans or in any other way and share it on whatsapp no. 9306950821.

Regards
